Administrative History

The National Women's Martial Arts Federation (NWMAF) is a non-profit organization that is dedicated to promoting the involvement and empowerment of all women and girls—cis and trans—as well as gender nonbinary and nonconforming people, who are active in martial arts, self-defense, and healing arts. Founded in 1979, NWMAF provides a community that serves both individuals learning self-defense skills and self-defense instructors. At events including an annual summer conference, the organization offers empowerment self-defense classes, professional development for instructors and business owners, and a self-defense instructor certification program.

Scope and Content

The National Women's Martial Arts Federation Records consist of 17 linear feet and roughly span the years 1982-2010. This collection is unprocessed, so dates and descriptions are only estimations. The records consist of bylaws, meeting minutes, correspondence, newsletters, insurance records, financial reports, membership records, promotional materials, directories, surveys, conference programs and materials, member lists, legal documents, contracts, martial arts publications, and receipts. The collection also contains memorabilia and audiovisual materials including t-shirts, DVDs, CDs, VHS tapes, photographs, and floppy disks. Oversize materials were moved to the flat files.
