Administrative History

Women-Church Convergence is a coalition of autonomous women's groups and organizations of the Roman Catholic heritage committed to women-church. The group works to raise a feminist voice and is committed to the self-governing participation of women in the church.

On May 3 and 4, 1977, the National Conference of Catholic Bishops met at the Palmer House in Chicago to discuss an agenda from the national Call to Action organization including women's issues such as Ordination of Women, participation in decision making, equal access to professional theological and pastoral training, elimination of sexist language, expansion of ministries, elimination of sexism in liturgies, female altar servers, and passage of the Equal Rights Amendment. This meeting gave the leaders of the group Chicago Catholic Women the opportunity to invite other similar-minded groups to share in opening a dialogue with the bishops about these issues. Chicago Catholic Women joined with other women's groups in sponsoring a hospitality suite under the name Women of the Church Coalition for this purpose. Disappointed by the result—only two Bishops appeared—and by the elimination of the entire section on Women in the final report, the member groups of this coalition decided to continue working together on justice issues for women.

Women of the Church Coalition was formed around the idea of including both laywomen and women religious working together for women's issues. In addition to the founding member groups, the coalition grew to include the Catholic Committee on Urban Ministry, Catholic Women's Seminary Fund, Catholics Act for ERA, Center of Concern, 8th Day Center for Justice, Knights of Peter Claver-Ladies Auxiliary, Leadership Conference of Women Religious, - Executive Committee, National Assembly of Women Religious, and the Women's Ordination Conference, among others. One representative from each member organization attended meetings twice a year and presented her group's concerns and agenda. The Coalition would then endorse needed and timely actions with signatures and personal commitment. These bi-annual meetings led to an international conference in 1983 entitled "Woman-Church Speaks: From Generation to Generation," held in Chicago and sponsored by Chicago Catholic Women, Institute of Women Today, Las Hermanas, National Assembly of Religious Women, National Coalition of American Nuns, Quixote Center, Women's Ordination Conference, and the Women's Alliance for Theology, Ethics, and Ritual. Following the 1983 conference, the sponsoring groups decided to stay together and changed the name Women of the Church Coalition to Women-Church Convergence. Groups from across the country were invited to be part of this new movement. Today, W-CC consists of women and men who gather in their community to worship and act as a discipleship of equals.

In addition to working for recognition, empowerment and development of women as church, W-CC is committed to the egalitarian and self-governing participation of women in the church. To this end, W-CC has sponsored multiple national conferences since the original one in 1983. In 1987 the conference "Women-Church: Claiming Our Power" was held, and the conference "Women-Church: Weavers of Change" was held in 1993. Small conferences followed in 1997, 2000, and 2007. Each focused on women's spirituality, sexuality, and survival, and provided a forum for women to share, network, vision, take action, and foster hope and support for their struggles to live Gospel values and create a world without militarism, poverty, racism, and sexism.
